Southwest Virginia counties gets a "boost" from the Knoxville Sentinel, which says "Russell county, in Southwest Virginia, has voted a bond issue of $275,000 to build good roads. Wise county has already voted a bend issue of $700,000 and Lee one of $364,000. Tazewell is about to vote on a proposal to issue road bonds to the amount of $600,000. If it is carried these four counties adjoining will expend nearly $2,000,000 for roads. This is an example for East Tennessee counties, as well as the rest of Virginia. These counties are no better able to build roads than East Tennessee counties, but they will be better able to pay the taxes without the benefits of good roads. Badroads are the worst of extrayagences."

That Washington (Pa.) negro who eloped with a white girl will not repeat the offense for a possible fifteen years. He is in the penifentiary for that term.

Judge Lindsay, of Denver, insists that women are fifty times as honest as men. No, we were about to be mean enough to call attention to the fact that Judge Lindsay is a bachelor, but we won't.

All of the details pertaining to the sale of the good roads bonds of Wise county have been closed up. The engineers have about completed the prelimin ary surveys, and the contracts will be advertised and let as soon as possible.
